THE UNIVERSITY'S revised program for athletic scholarships (see page 11) will probably be welcomed among alumni with proportionately as many nods of approval as it brought from students.
And alumni generally will no doubt concur in Athletic Director Carroll Widdoes' opinion that the won-and-lost record of our athletic teams should be improved.

But they will approve of his emphasis on abiding by the NCAA regulations regarding assistance to athletes. With him, they can see the "evils of professionalism as practiced at certain schools where athletes are under contract, seldom attend classes and live separated from the rest of the campus."

And, as does Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California, alumni can of course see that "subsidization of athletes tends to undermine the essential justification for intercollegiate athletics; namely, the stimulating of widespread student interest in sport as a leisure time amateur recreation."

The athletic scholarship program being developed at Ohio University will enable many deserving young men to receive a college education that they might not otherwise have received. It is designed to help the athletically-talented scholar. In this type of youth the University will find the kind of young men who plays a game well and for their love of it, who find in themselves, in their leaders, and in their school the incentive and inspiration to win that money cannot buy, young men who will be a credit to Ohio University on the playing fields and after graduation.

A RECENT SURVEY BY the Alumni Office turned up some interesting figures concerning the number of freshmen now on the campus whose mothers, fathers, or other relatives attended the University before them.

One or both parents of 62, or 4.6 percent, of the 1,313 freshmen now enrolled attended the University. Those listing other relatives number 225, or 17.1 percent. Summed up, the number of freshmen who followed grandparents, parents, brothers and sisters, uncles, aunts, or cousins to Ohio University totals 287, or 21.7 percent.
There are, of course, many factors playing on these figures. For instance, there are proportionately many more high school graduates entering college today than there were when the parents of today's freshmen received their high school diplomas.

Now we didn't thumb through 1,313 records without a purpose.
We made the compilation with the hope that we would find that a tradition of children following parents and other relatives to Ohio University is developing. What we found doesn't exactly elate us, but it is encouraging. While statistically we perhaps didn't find a trend, we feel that we did find an indication of a trend and definite proof that the tradition which we would like to see develop is in the making.

The desirability of the tradition we seek lies essentially in the relationship between an alumnus and his university. If the bond between an alumnus and his alma mater is a pleasant, mutually-satisfying one, a relationship that is treasured by both school and graduate, then its worthiness and the satisfaction it affords will be multiplied by the number of generations in a family who seek to add to and partake of that satisfying experience.

'Tailor-Made' Programs

The College of Fine Arts

BY DEAN EARL C. SEIGFRED

We in the College of Fine Arts like to think of the degree Bachelor of Fine Arts, which is awarded students successfully completing a curriculum within the College, as indicating an experience with all the major arts as well as thorough training in the art of the student's special interest.

Candidates for the degree complete a major of from 32 to 60 credit hours, depending upon the field of their choice, a minor of 24 hours in general studies in the history and appreciation of the related fine arts and a minimum of two semesters of general education. By balancing the work in these three areas, the special interest, the background in fine arts, and the general academic courses, it is hoped that a well-rounded student emerges from the program, equipped in basic professional knowledge and skills and prepared to assume the responsibilities which society expects a college-trained man or woman to accept. Such a program has a distinct advantage over the plan of most professional schools in which the training of the student tends to neglect the broader aspects of education.

This program stresses the individual and his needs. A substantial number of electives, which students are permitted to include, makes possible student programs which are "tailor-made" to fit each student's objectives. To carry out this philosophy of serving the individual requires the College of Fine Arts to offer an extensive counseling service, from registration to graduation. Ohio University prides itself in the importance it attaches to personal counseling.

An essential factor in the College's ability to carry on its broad, integrated program and to provide for the wide range of student objectives is the flexibility of the University's over-all set-up which allows students from any school or division within the University to go outside their own school for required and elective courses.

Three schools comprise the College of Fine Arts: The School of Dramatic Art and Speech, the School of Music, and the School of Painting and Allied Arts.

Proficiency in oral expression is a university-wide requirement. To the School of Dramatic Art and Speech is given the task of training all incoming freshmen, except those who pass the university's test for speech proficiency, to be at ease in a variety of speaking situations. Besides this basic service program, the School of Dramatic Art and Speech has developed curricula in public address, dramatic art, speech correction, and radio.

Under faculty supervision, the campus radio stations, WOUN and WOUL-FM, are operated by students of Dramatic Art and Speech, in co-operation with the School of Journalism and the Department of Electrical Engineering. A speakers' bureau organized by the School furnishes speakers for civic groups and provides further practice for speech majors.

For those students whose interest is in the theatre, whether actors, writers, directors, or technicians, there is the University Theatre, which each year presents four major productions, two plays in its historical series, and a group of one-act plays.

In the School of Music, students may choose one of four fields of concentration: applied music, music literature, music education, and music theory or composition. Approved by the National Association of Schools of Music, the School of Music at Ohio University today offers excellent staff and facilities for instruction of professional calibre.

The School of Painting and Allied Arts includes programs in design, drawing and painting, commercial art, sculpture and ceramics, architecture, photography, and art education. Options are available in interior decoration.

Mid-Year Record

University Graduates 318

THE UNIVERSITY graduated the largest mid-year class in its 146-year history last month, when 318 graduates received their degrees at Commencement exercises in Alumni Memorial Auditorium. The group included 263 men and 55 women. June graduation will set another record, with more than 800 applications for graduation already in the registrar's office.

President John C. Baker presided at the exercises, with the invocation given by the Rev. Phil Porter, Jr., rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd. The program included selections by a vocal ensemble from the men's glee club.

The Commencement speaker was Dr. Howard Mumford Jones, Harvard professor and noted scholar and author. Dr. Jones selected as his topic "Books." With warm humor and an experience nurtured by virtually a lifetime of living with his subject, the speaker revealed for his listeners the relative and absolute value of books and the part they can play in a full life.

He advised the graduates to build a private bulwark against the "vicissitudes of the next dark decades" by seeking out and clinging to some "small, enduring library" of their own. He cautioned that, to be effective, this library must be comprised of books which are among the best of their kind and which "seem miraculously to address themselves to you." Admit no book, he advised, that you feel you "ought to like."

Professor Jones classified books as textbooks, the classics, and "other" books. Textbooks he described as the only books to which all Americans are exposed. He termed them so nearly anonymous as to be soon forgotten. He pointed out that what is remembered is the "warmth, the personality, and individual drive of some favorite teacher." The teacher, he declared, is remembered, the book with which he was for a time associated is forgotten.

With a scholar's reverence and respect, the speaker turned to his second general classification, the classics. He realistically admitted that "only a small minority" of university graduates ever again read the classics, ever "comfort themselves with Tennyson and stay themselves with Wordsworth" once they leave the classroom. Literary classics, he opined, are so closely associated with the classroom that once schooling is finished they are never again read for fear such reading might develop into another class.

Sometimes subtle, sometimes bold, nearly always critical, he turned to "other books," the books "currently being produced." He singled out from the fictionists, however, in his criticism the contemporary historians, memoir writers, writers on science and religion as writers of "straightforward prose that does not seem to originate in the same world as that of the fiction writers and the poets." The last two named, he declared, convey an extraordinary impression of violence in our times.

"If all records of 20th-century life in the United States were to disappear except recent fiction, what weird notions the historian is going to form," the scholar stated.

He suggested that the modern novelist should, as did the writers of the classics, not just "mirror" life, but "illuminate" it. He criticized the novelists' recurring theme which shows an apparent belief that the "primary duty of life is the pursuit of happiness."

"The concept of duty, of self-sacrifice, of abnegation is principally reserved for the state and for public questions," the speaker declared. He said most contemporary writers "chronicle with admiration" the lives of persons who suffer or die for a cause, but "smile condescendingly" at the Victorian novelists who espoused duty as the central concept in husband-wife, parents-children relationships.

Summing up, Dr. Jones declared that the "great office of books" is to assist us in an understanding of the present in terms of the local recording of human experience. He warned the graduates that "occasions will arise . . . when you will want something more comforting than a jukebox or a detective story; when you will wish to identify yourself with the mysterious procession of men across the endless ages; when you will need the wisdom and serenity principally recorded in literary art; when, in short, you will be suddenly grateful that you are educated men and women."

University Terrace Is Site of New Church

A $1,089,000 building program recently launched by the Southern Ohio Diocese of the Episcopal Church will include a new church on University Terrace (see page 6). Ground will be broken in May for the new Church of the Good Shepherd, with plans for the inclusion of a spacious and well-equipped student center. Church officials point out that one of the reasons for the diocesan decision to build the new church is the stress now being placed by the church upon youth work and the need for better facilities for such work. The local structure is part of a program which calls for churches with student centers at Ohio State and Miami and the rebuilding of "Old Kenyon" at Gambier.

Cost of the Georgian-Colonial style structure, which fits the architectural scheme of the campus, is quoted at approximately $320,000. It will be located on the east side of University Terrace near Mulberry St. The site has been owned by Miss Constance Grosvenor Leete, '18, Miss Greta A. Lash, '17, members of the University faculty, and Mrs. Grace Grosvenor Shepard, '93, Columbus.

Architect for the church is William Jay Davis, '32, of Athens. Mr. Davis designed the $500,000 Men's Dorm Quadrangle, which was completed recently.

After graduation from Ohio University, Mr. Davis continued his study of architecture at Columbia University and at the Beaux Arts Institute of Design. He served his apprenticeship in New York City prior to supplementary studies in Europe.

He was recently named architect for an extensive building program of the Ohio Farmers Insurance Co. and is also preparing plans for a proposed addition to the Mechanicsburg

English Proficiency Committee Reports

(Editor's Note: The following article was prepared by members of the Committee on English Proficiency and the supervisors of the English Clinic. Members of the committee are Edith A. Wray, chairman, Greta A. Lash, '17, H. H. Peckham, C. A. Smart, and Eric Thompson, all of the English department faculty. Instructors Leona Pickard, '40, and Esther Hand, '38, conduct the English Clinic.)

To improve standards and to correct deficiencies, in the fall of 1948 the administration of Ohio University set up an experimental program of testing students' ability to write reasonably correct English on the college level. Such a program called for a Proficiency Test to be given near the end of the sophomore year.

The Proficiency Test is a simple writing exercise of from 400 to 500 words on a subject of the student's own choice from a list composed of suggestions from all departments of the University. The essay must be clearly related to the title, coherently developed, free from sentence fragments and awkward dangling constructions, decently spelled, logically paraphrased, and neatly written. It is read and marked passed or failed by two readers from any quarter of the University. An effort is made, however, to assign papers in a given field to readers familiar with that field. When there is a disagreement in the grade, a third reader breaks the tie.

On October 19, 1949, another Executive Committee action resulted in the following motion: "That after September 19, 1949, any student whose cumulative record shows a total of 45 to 60 semester hours credit shall be required to pass the English Proficiency Examination for graduation, regardless of the date when he first entered the University."

As an aid to students whose written English fell short of university standards, the Department of English offered at the beginning of the fall semester, 1949-50, an English Clinic, open five days a week. The Clinic is open to: (1) students whose failing mark in the Proficiency Test makes attendance desirable; (2) students recommended by their professors, on the basis of unsatisfactory use of English; (3) students voluntarily seeking help.

Methods of instruction in the Clinic vary according to the individual needs of the students. The papers of those students who have already failed the Proficiency Test are used as a partial basis for further diagnosis and aid.

The students directed to the Clinic by professors present written evidence from the professors of their outstanding weaknesses. Students who attend the Clinic voluntarily are expected to state their own needs. When the Clinic formally opened the fall semester of 1949, 34 students enrolled. Of these, 32 had failed the Sophomore Proficiency Test given May 12, 1949, one was a foreign student reporting for help in the mechanics of the English form, another was a student seeking more fluent expression.

Of the 32 reporting who had failed the test, 23 took the Proficiency Test when it was given Oct. 24, 1949. Of these 23, 19 this time passed the test; four again failed. The four who failed did so for various reasons: one student left his paper blank, the second is a "hopeless" speller, the third is a poor organizer, and the fourth is weak in all mechanics.

It is to be noted that this whole program is still in the experimental stage. Naturally, changes will be made from time to time as experience and practice indicate needs for modification. The aim, which is to better students' writing and speaking, is sound; the Sophomore Proficiency Test and the Clinic have proved to be tangible evidence of achievement toward that goal.

On and About the Green . .

The University's chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity, placed eighth in a nationwide efficiency contest for collegiate chapters. The contest was entered by 32 of the 52 chapters in the nation.

The judging was based on the ability of undergraduate chapters of the fraternity to carry on their business effectively and to provide professional programs for their members. First in the contest, which was judged by the organization's national headquarters in Chicago, was the Indiana University chapter. Ohio State University, which has the only other chapter in Ohio, placed fourteenth.

The local chapter recently initiated 25 undergraduate members and one professional member. Vic Sherow, '29, director of the University news bureau, was the professional initiated, while the undergraduates were Ronald Davis, Athens; George Constable, Cleveland; Joe Misamore, Findlay; Herb Levy, Lima; Clinton Bell, Warren; Alvin Lindholm, Collingdale, Pa.; John Callihan, Gibsonburg; George Mentzer, Lima; Robert Grimm, Letart Falls; Jack DeForest, Cincinnati; John Miller, Wooster; Henry Williams, New York City;

William Jewell, Franklin Furnace; Al Nagy, Akron.

THE UNIVERSITY'S total second semester registration is 5,495. Total campus enrollment is 4,750, according to Registrar Robert E. Mahn. Branches director Albert C. Gubit: reports 225 at Chillicothe, 335 at Portsmouth, and 185 at Zanesville. The branch enrollment of 745 shows an increase over last semester's 682.

On the campus, the record graduating group of 318 in February brought enrollment to 4,700, despite the 125 new freshmen who entered the University in February. Branch students are regularly numbered among new campus registrants.

THREE JAPANESE students have entered the University under the re-education plan of the Department of the Army. The three are among some 200 students brought to this country during the current academic year from Japan, Germany, and Austria and enrolled in universities throughout the country. The three at the University are the largest group of Japanese students to be enrolled under the program in a single university.

They are Tetsuro Sasaki of Morika, Iwate; Yasuo Hashiguchi (re-christened "Hash" by the men in the Dorm) of Sendai City, Kagoshumaken; and Tadashu Shimada of Fukui City. They are graduate students engaged in teacher training and have pledged themselves to continue in this work when they return to their homeland. They will be enrolled during the current semester, the summer session, and the first semester of the 1950-51 term in the field of education, but not following any set curriculum.

Ohio University currently has a German student, Gerhard Mantel, enrolled under this program, which is being taken over by the State Department as it concerns Germany.

THE GUIDANCE program for freshmen women will be revamped next fall with introduction of a new Human Relations course, "A Practicum in Student Personnel." The course will furnish senior counselors to help freshmen in their orientation to university life.

With all freshmen women housed in university residence halls, a counselor will be assigned to groups of 15 to 20 girls. Some 500 new women are expected to enroll this fall.

Preventative rather than problem-solving, according to Dean of Women Leona Wise Felsted, who inaugurated the plan, the program will aid freshmen women to budget their time, develop good study habits, and enter extra-curricular activities. Dean Felsted described the plan as "not intended to be a coddling program," but "in line with a philosophy which holds that the residence hall provides an opportunity for citizen training and for extending classroom education into 24-hour education."

The senior counselors will start their preparation next month.

THE BAND UNIFORM Planning Board has completed final arrangements for new uniforms with the DeNoulin Uniform Co. of Illinois.

Five bids were considered by the planning board, which is made up of the directors and staff of the bands, representatives of the art and home economics faculties, and William Herbert, 25, University purchasing agent.

The band will appear in the new uniforms for the first time at the April 23 Anniversary Concert. Frances Greer, star of the Metropolitan Opera will be heard with the band.

The uniform selected will have a white jacket with green accessories and green trousers. The shirts will be green. The men will wear white spats and the girls white boots. A high-crown military hat of green gabardine with a tailored white gabardine cover has been chosen for the men, while the women will choose a hat from two styles being designed by the DeNoulin Co.

Approximately $5,000 is still needed to field the completely uniformed 105-piece marching band next fall.

A SYSTEM OF FACULTY grading whereby students will evaluate instructors and their teaching methods was accepted at a recent Student Council meeting.

The proposed plan, to go into effect this semester, provides that grade sheets which will be filled out anonymously by students in their classes will be given to instructors for their confidential consideration.

OTHER COUNCIL business included preliminary plans for the all-campus Mother's Weekend, to be held this spring. Al Gubitz, Jr., Athens, submitted a survey of housing accommodations available for the occasion. A date for the weekend, when mothers of students will be guests of their sons and daughters and of the University, is to be announced soon.

From the President's Office

One question which I am frequently asked is, "What are the scholastic standards at Ohio University today?" I always hesitate to answer this question because a specific reply can be misleading and because it poses many other issues. From the comments of faculty members and students and from my own observations, however, I believe the answer is, "Our standards are high and slowly getting higher." As I give this short answer, two other questions immediately arise in my mind.

What are scholastic standards in any university, and who sets them? They can signify anything from simply raising grading standards (the least satisfactory way) and making more difficult class assignments to the "educational climate" of a college or university. By educational climate I mean the university attitude—the attitude of students and faculty toward their main job. This climate, I believe, is what we mean when we discuss scholastic standards at Ohio University. It should be the interest, the objective, and the main concern of students and faculty.

Scholastic standards are not set arbitrarily by deans or by faculty members, but rather by students and faculty working together. These two groups establish the true educational atmosphere in any institution.

There are many reasons why our standards are high and getting higher and why quality education is our objective. The students who returned after the war were older and more serious than previous students, and many had learned the significance of a good education. Many were married, and their wives proved to be an incentive to serious study. The faculty and the administration also feel the challenge of these students and sincerely believe in proper standards for Ohio University. These are serious times, and they demand the attitude toward higher education which now exists with us. No society can live on the verge of a third world war or face partial annihilation and not be serious about higher education.

Not long ago an average student remarked in my office, "Professor X is tough, but fair. I doubt if I get more than a 'C' in his course, but I'm going to sign up for a second semester with him because he made me think." This statement typifies the attitude of the average student at Ohio University today toward our scholastic standards.

Furthermore, our standards mean that everything possible is being done to help individual students. By means of counseling, good teaching, and proper surroundings and incentives, we help students in every way to achieve their objectives. I believe it is fair to say that, if a student works, he may find it easier to complete his work here at the present time than he would have years ago. Alumni can be proud of the scholastic standards of their Alma Mater.

university of his choice. The recipient will be chosen by the McCracken Scholarship Award Committee of Omega Chapter.

An applicant for the award shall be a senior in Omega Chapter, an alumna of the chapter of not more than three years, or a senior in the College of Education at Ohio University. Applications should be submitted to the Counselor of Omega Chapter, Miss Ann E. Mumma, '29, A.M. '41, College of Education. The announcement came too late for eligible off-campus persons to meet the March 15 application deadline for this year's award, but the award will be made each year, and application for next year's award may be made any time.

■ A new speech textbook, used this semester by freshmen taking Speech 1, is the work of Dr. L. C. Staats, '26, and Dr. Elizabeth G. Andersch of the School of Dramatic Art and Speech.

The book, published by Rinehart and Co. of New York, includes illustrations posed by Ohio University students.

■ Dr. Donald R. Clippinger, chairman of the Ohio University chemistry department, has been named councilor of the recently-formed Upper Ohio Valley Section of the American Chemical Society. Composed of academic and professional chemists, the section includes the chemistry department staffs of Ohio University and Marietta College and industrial chemists in the Athens-Marietta-Parkersburg area.

■ Carl H. Roberts, '27, director of secondary student teaching, participated in the meetings of the Association of Student Teaching and attended the meeting of the Association of Supervision and Curriculum Development in Denver last month.

■ Clarence H. White, visiting lecturer in photography, was one of the judges of the annual photography contest of the Ohio Associated Press editors held this month in Columbus.

■ Dr. John F. Cady, associate professor of history, gave a recent convocation address at Franklin College, Indiana, on the topic, "Problems of Southeast Asia." Dr. Cady contributed an article entitled "Challenge in Southeast Asia" to the February 8 Far Eastern Survey. In the same issue is a book review of The New World of Southeast Asia by Lennox A. Mills and Associates of the University of Minnesota Press, in which the chapter on Burma was written by Dr. Cady.

■ The Youngstown Ohio University Mothers' Club recently entertained Prof. Albert C. Gubitz, director of off-campus relations, at a dinner when Professor Gubitz attended a College Day at the Youngstown high schools.

■ George W. Clark, associate professor of civil engineering, is the new president of the Ohio Society of Professional Engineers. He has served as vice president of the organization for the past two years.

He is a member of the Hocking Valley chapter of the society. As a member of the University faculty since 1931, Professor Clark has been active in affairs of the society for many years and has helped organize several new groups in the state.

Architect Named for New Student Center

Plans for construction of a new Student Center at Ohio University moved a step forward with the announcement by President Baker of the selection of the architectural firm of Bellman, Gillett and Richards of Toledo by the Board of Trustees.

The structure, to cost an estimated $1,000,000 for the first portion designed, will be located on the site of the present Student Center Building, just off the main campus, and will cover much of the adjoining residential land already owned by the University.

The new Student Center has been in the planning stage for many months. A $5 per semester fee, approved by vote of the students, has been collected since the summer of 1948, with approximately $100,000 already earmarked toward the Student Center Fund. Money has also been donated by various campus organizations and from the proceeds of campus events.

The Student Center, according to present plans, will include such much-needed facilities as ballrooms, lounges, dormitory rooms, dining rooms, cafeteria, offices for the many student organizations and functions, recreational facilities, snack bar, probable faculty quarters, and offices for administration of student extra-curricular activities, President Baker said.

The design will be harmonious with the best colonial buildings now on the campus and will give a domestic rather than institutional feeling. It will be constructed so that it may be added to later on as both the site and the needs of the University for such a structure are greater than present building funds will permit.

Earlier consideration for space for commercial shops to provide some of the services commonly made available to students on college campuses has been shelved for the time being, with such space to be worked into the new structure for greatly-needed additional classroom space.

Faculty Sketches

By BOB McCREANOR, '48

Part of the secret of the apparently limitless energy of Prof. Robert L. Morton, '13, is his refusal to waste any of it. Or, as summed up by a colleague: "Bob doesn't spend one ounce of energy on anything irrelevant."

Described as a "demon for organization," Professor Morton of Education is a highly efficient teacher, a prolific writer and speaker, and an indefatigable committee worker. A teacher who came up through the ranks, from teaching and administering in county and village schools to a full professorship at his alma mater, Professor Morton is nationally-known among educators generally and a recognized leader in elementary mathematics and education.

He is a member of the Ohio and the National Education Associations and is a past vice-president of the American Educational Research Association. After 28 years, he is the only still-active charter member of the Ohio Education Association's Educational Council. For 11 years, he was chairman of the Ohio College Association's Committee on High School-College Relations.

A "teacher of teachers," Dr. Morton doesn't limit his contributions to the classroom. Never stingy with his time when it is to serve the interest of the profession he loves, Professor Morton has talked to teachers' meetings and other groups from coast to coast and Forder to Forder. Last summer he gave the opening paper at the University of Chicago's Fourth Annual Conference on Arithmetic.

Sandwiched into his remarkable number of speaking commitments and his teaching schedule—which is a full one, despite other demands on his time—are literally hundreds of articles and treatises. Professor Morton has written for educational journals. He can't hide a pleased pride in one of these in particular, "Your Income Tax for 1948," published in Ohio Schools, March, 1949. It was reprinted in educational journals in several other states and garnered a respectful editorial comment from The Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Besides his articles, Dr. Morton has written alone or in collaboration several textbooks on mathematics and arithmetic. His Teaching Arithmetic in the Elementary School (3 vols.) is used more frequently than any other similar work wherever the English language is spoken.

By his own admission "precise" and "objective," Professor Morton gives evidence of the former in his complete records containing file cards on each of the 9,293 registrants and 7,616 individuals he has had in his classes since he began teaching at Ohio University in 1916. His objectivity is illustrated by the happy combination he has found which enables him to "deal with students as persons, but treat their work anonymously."

Recreation for a man so consumed by his work would seem not possible, but Bob Morton, one of three charter members of the Athens Country Club, has found time to become known as "an inveterate golfer" and gain a substantial reputation as a fisherman. Maybe some of the secret of his tremendous capacity for work can be found in his ability to relax as efficiently as he works.

COLLEGE OF FINE ARTS

tion, fashion design, graphic and plastic design. Again, preparation for a profession is the keynote, but many students who have no thought of making art a career find courses in art an enriching experience.

Ohio University, by nature and by intent, serves the community in many ways. In no phase of its broad cultural and professional program is this service to the community better expressed than in the College of Fine Arts. Through the laboratory programs of its three schools, the College offers residents of Athens and vicinity many worthwhile opportunities.

As manifestations of such community service, the School of Dramatic Art and Speech can point to its radio stations, to its theatre productions, to its speakers' bureau, and to its speech clinics. The latter have grown remarkably in scope. To the clinic, which for several years has offered special assistance to university students with speech and hearing defects, has been added a clinical service for speech-handicapped children of the Ohio University area.

Throughout the year, the School of Music provides its students with opportunities to appear publicly in recitals and in band and symphonic concerts. It schedules also a series of faculty recitals. Last year 42 musical programs were presented, most of them without admission charge.

The School of Painting and Allied Arts shares with the non-university public its many excellent traveling exhibits as well as displays of student work. In addition, it sponsors art shows of regional character. Notable among these is the annual Ohio Valley Oil and Water Color Show, which has been held at Ohio University for the past eight years. This show, open to artists in the six states touched by the Ohio River, was termed by the Louisville Courier-Journal "the most important regional show open to Kentucky artists". This might have been said of Ohio artists as well.

Photography exhibits are periodically open to the public. Ohio University was a pioneer in developing a department in this field. It was the first university to offer a degree in photography and now has curricula leading to both bachelors' and masters' degrees. It is still one of very few universities with degree programs in photography.

To you alumni who have been "out of touch," perhaps, with your University, this will present a general picture of the College of Fine Arts. To you alumni of the College it affords an opportunity to send you our greetings and to assure you of our continued interest in your careers.

The Bobcat Sports Review

By VIC SHEROW, '29

THE BOBCAT BASKETBALLERS added three wins to their record in eight games played during February, and closed out both their regular and conference schedule March 4 against Western Michigan at Kalamazoo with a loss.

The February chapter was featured by the two consecutive wins over Western Reserve and Muskingum, the only time the Bobcats were able to take the honors twice in a row, and a thrilling 75 to 74 win over the University of Akron Zippers in the next to last home floor appearance.

The Bobcats dropped their first two February games, to Butler 70-49 and Dayton 75-50, both on foreign courts, then dumped Western Reserve 62-49 and Muskingum 67-63 on the home floor. Miami took the measure of the Ohioans 54-45 at Oxford, and closing out their home schedule the Snyder-coached lads staged a decided surprise in tripping Akron 75 to 74 in a last minute comeback, then dropped the finale to Butler 67-56. The Bobcats lost their second tussle to Marietta 66-59 on the latter's home floor.

They were overpowered in the final minutes of play at Western Michigan to lose the season's finale to the Broncos by a 78 to 52 count. With a 6 won—14 lost season's mark, the sophomore Bobcats had a 3-7 Mid-

Am Conference record, good for a tie with Miami for fourth. Cincinnati led the conference with a 10-0 tally, followed by Butler and Western Michigan with 6-4 each. Western Reserve trailed all with only 2 wins in 10 conference starts.

Elwood Sparks led the Bobcat scorers with 237. Glen Hursey's 178 took second, Dave Leightenheimer was third with 154, and Jack Betts fourth with 136.

COACH FRANK RICHEY'S swimmers ended their six-meet schedule with two wins and four losses. Victories were over Wittenberg 42-33 and Ohio Wesleyan 42-27, while the Bobcats bowed before Kent State 23-52 in the only home pool meet, and to Bowling Green 28-47, Wayne University 14-60 and Detroit University 24-50, all in the winners' home pools.

THE WRESTLERS, TAKING to the mats again after a year's lapse in this sport have two wins, one tie and three defeats on their record. They closed out the brief six-match schedule with a return engagement against Findlay at Findlay on March 4 which they won 28-5. The other win was a 29-2 contest on the home mats with Findlay. The Bobcats lost to Waynesburg 5-27, to West Virginia 8-24, and to the Ohio State Junior Varsity 10-21, while gaining a 15-15 tie with Western Reserve at Cleveland. Coach Fred Schleicher feels the year's experience will prove of great benefit to most of his squad in preparation for a full-fledged schedule next year.

THE BOBCAT BASEBALLERS, looking forward to a schedule of close to 30 games, including eight on the annual southern training trip during spring vacation, are limbering up these days in the Athens arena.

At the moment of writing this item, prospects are somewhat dim for getting outdoors for much practice before heading south April 2. Following an extremely rainy January and first half of February, winter finally has come to Athens and at present the ground is well covered with snow.

Coach Bob Wren, however, is giving his boys all possible instruction inside, while hoping weather conditions will allow several outdoor workouts in the not too distant future.

Besides the contests with the Mid-American Conference opponents—Miami, Cincinnati, Western Reserve, Butler and Western Michigan—the Bobcats will cross bats with at least two Big Ten teams—Purdue and Ohio State—and possibly with Wisconsin, and also have one tilt listed with Notre Dame.

The southern trip, during the annual spring vacation period, will give the Bobcats eight games in a nine-day period, weather permitting, and should get them in good shape for the opening of the regular season with Western Michigan as opponent only three days after their return to Athens.

The southern trip schedule is as follows:

April 3 and 4—at Lenoir Rhyne, Hickory, N.C.; April 5—at Catawba, Salisbury, N.C.; April 6—at Elon College, N.C.; April 7 and 8—at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va., and April 10 and 11—at Marshall College, Huntington, W. Va.

The regular schedule, with conference games marked with an*, is as follows:

April 14 and 15—Western Michigan* at home; April 18—at Notre Dame; April 21—at Miami*; April 22—at Cincinnati*; April 25—at Purdue; April 29—Marshall at home.

May 2—Ohio State at home; May 5 and 6—at Western Reserve*; May 9—at Muskingum; May 12—

Cincinnati at home*; May 13—Miami at home*; May 16—Marietta at home; May 19 and 20—at Butler*; May 24—at West Virginia; May 26 and 27—Kent State at home; May 30—at Ohio State.

The tentative game with Wisconsin, if scheduled, probably will be the season's opener on April 12 on the home diamond.

KERMIT BLOSSER'S varsity golfers also will be making a spring vacation southern training trip for the second straight year, featured with two days of play at the famous White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., with Washington and Lee as the opponent.

The golfers took advantage of spring-like weather during January and early February to get in a few practice licks and are hoping the weather conditions improve sufficiently for some further loosening up before the linksters head south on April 2.

The southern trip opens with the White Sulphur Springs matches on April 3 and 4, and also includes matches with University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill April 5; Elon College, N.C., on April 6; North Carolina State at Raleigh on April 7; Wake Forest, N.C. on April 8; Quantico Marines at Quantico, Va. on April 10, and University of Virginia at Charlottesville, Va., on April 11.

The regular season schedule is as follows:

April 18—at Marietta; April 22—Ohio Wesleyan at home; April 23—Cincinnati at home; April 27—at Marshall College; May 3—Marietta at home; May 6—Miami at home; May 9—at Dayton; May 13—at Wittenberg; May 15—at Ohio Intercollegiate meet, on Ohio State course at Columbus; May 20—Marshall at home; and May 26 and 27—Mid-American Conference championships at Miami.

THE VARSITY TENNIS squad, playing for the second year under the coaching of Engineering Professor Al Nellis, has 10 matches lined up in addition to the conference championships.

Coach Nellis lost most of the members of last year's strong squad and due to inclement weather hasn't had much opportunity of looking over possible new players this year.

The complete schedule is:

April 15—Marshall at home; April 21—at Oberlin; April 22—at Ohio State; April 25—Wittenberg at

New Athletic Scholarship Program Set

OF OUTSTANDING interest on the athletic front during the past month was the announcement of establishment of an athletic scholarship account in the Ohio University Fund, Inc.

Keeping within the rules of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, and following a procedure used at many other colleges, these scholarships will be offered able students who also have promising athletic ability.

Students considered for the scholarships must rank in the upper half of their graduating class, be recommended by the director of athletics, and be approved by the university's scholarship committee. Scholarships awarded will be for a one-year period and will cover the basic semester fee of $45. Other aid offered athletes will be the same as is available for all needy students board and room jobs, other campus employment or jobs in local business houses and establishments.

Aim of the new program is to attract to Ohio University high type athletes who also are scholars, with aid not based primarily on athletic ability.

"The scholarships will strengthen our athletic squads by bringing in the type of young men who will be a credit to Ohio University," officials said in revealing the program, which has been approved by President John C. Baker and the Board of Athletic Control.

home; April 28—Miami at home; May 6—at Toledo; May 9—at Marshall; May 13—at Muskingum; May 16—Muskingum at home; May 20—Western Reserve at home, and May 26 and 27—Mid-American Conference championships at Miami.

SEVEN TRACK MEETS, with a triangular opener, will condition Coach Jim Johnson's track squad for the Mid-American Conference championships which will close the season May 26 and 27 at Miami.

The Bobcat runners will open their season April 15 at home in a triangular meet with Marshall and Akron as opponents; will be at Bowling Green on April 22; at Cincinnati April 29; at West Virginia May 6, at Pittsburgh May 13, and have home meets with Miami on May 15 and Western Reserve May 20.

THE QUARTERBACK CLUB brought Ohio State University Athletic Director Richard Larkins to Athens as the speaker for its annual banquet held recently. Shown in the picture are (l. to r.) officials has been working on preliminary steps for a year and a half, mainly correlating ideas for space usage in the new building.

A smaller committee has been named to continue the developmental work with the architects, with Dr. James R. Patrick continuing as chairman, and with other faculty and administrative members being President Baker, Prof. William Fenzel, '18, Dr. Gaige B. Paulsen, Mrs. Margaret Twyman, Charles Lewis, '49, Miss Catherine Nelson and A.C. Denison, professor of architecture. Gordon K. Bush, '24, has represented the Board of Trustees, and student members are Miss Dana Galbreath of Columbus, Miss Sally Harkness of Cleveland, Miss Patricia Armstrong of Lakewood, Miss Judith Cole of Ashley, Milton Taylor of Columbus, Edward Sudnick of Cleveland, Alvin Lindholm of Collingdale, Pa., and Wallace Bennett of Rocky River.

It is proposed that construction work will be launched early in 1951.

A $15,000 REMODELING program for Schine's Athena Theater was started last month. Plans call for a 300 to 350-seat balcony, remodeling of the theater front and a new marquee, and new projection equipment. Alumni will remember the Athena, which was formerly known as the Majestic and became the Athena some 15 years ago.

A new movie house was added to the Court Street scene recently with the opening of the Varsity Theater, an impressive structure on the west side of the street between the Court-house and the campus.

DR. WILEY T. SPRAGUE, former Athens physician, but associated with his son, Dr. Gerald T. Sprague, '20, in the practice of medicine in Van Nuys, Calif., since 1936, died Jan. 12, 1950, at his California home. Besides the younger physician, Dr. Sprague is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Harry C. Snyder (Marian Sprague, '27x), Blanchester.

Goddard Brothers Receive Promotions

Recent important promotions for two brothers, Charles and Homer Goddard, came almost simultaneously.

The appointment of Charles H. Goddard, '27, as manager of utility sales for Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., Salem, Mass., is the latest in a series of advancements since he joined the company in 1944 as merchandise manager of the firm's lighting fixture division.

Before joining the Sylvania organization, world's largest manufacturer of fluorescent fixtures, he was with the Pittsburgh Reflector Co., where in 1940 he was named to the board of directors and elected vice president and director of sales. He was with the Columbus Railway Power & Light Co. from 1928 to 1930. He has been an officer in various professional organizations in his industry and is currently president of the Illuminating Engineering Society.

During the war, he served on his industry's committees of the WPB and OPA and helped develop lighting equipment for the Army and Navy.

Mr. and Mrs. Goddard live in Newburyport, Mass., in a 200-year-old home on an island in the Merrimac River. As he drives to his office, Mr. Goddard passes the sign which marks the place where the wagon train started west to settle the Northwest Territory. He also has visited the site of the Grapes Tavern, where the idea was conceived for the college that was to become Ohio University.

Homer A. Goddard, Jr., '24x, has been named assistant general manager for industrial marketing for the Gulf Oil Corp. In his new post, created as part of the firm's reorganized domestic marketing program, Mr. Goddard will be responsible for direct sales of Gulf products to industrial plants and organizations.

Mr. Goddard left Ohio University to enter the Colorado School of Mines, from which he was graduated in 1925 with an E.M. degree. After graduation, he joined the Wellston Clay Products Co. in Wellston, his hometown. From there he went into mining work in Kentucky and Pennsylvania dealing with various phases of mechanical loading of coal. He later was associated with the Bethlehem Steel Corp. and with the Mine Safety Appliances Co. in industrial sales work.

He joined Gulf in 1932 as industrial lubrication engineer with the Pittsburgh Division, later becoming superintendent of industrial sales for the division, and then assistant division manager in charge of industrial sales.

Mrs. Goddard is the former Jeanette Pilcher, '24. Mr. and Mrs. Goddard and their two children live in Pittsburgh.

Here and There Among the Alumni

DR. HIRAM ROY WILSON, professor emeritus of English, Ohio University, has complied with local requests that he conduct an adult education class in American Literature. He is doing so as a community service, with no fee charged for the course. The same text as used in the university's course in "The Chief American Writers" is being used. Dr. Wilson retired from active teaching in 1945.

1898

DR. DON D. TULLIS (see picture), Athens, a past president of the Ohio University Alumni Association and currently chairman of the Alumni Survey Committee, a committee which is giving careful consideration to the university's alumni program with a view to suggesting improvements and expansion, is now, with Mrs. Tullis, in Florida for the latter's health. Mrs. Tullis was operated several weeks ago for an eye ailment in a Boston hospital. Dr. Tullis, a former minister and church executive, "retired" from active service in the ministry in 1947, but has been busily engaged in filling temporarily vacant pulpits almost continuously since that time. The picture was taken at the Tullis home near Athens.

1902

DR. W. F. COPELAND (see "Deaths" on page 23) was known and regarded almost affectionately by many generations of students whose "little apple butter faces" were the subjects of his kindly comment for thirty-odd years.

1906

EARL T. DAILEY, ex, former Athens businessman who moved to California some 20 years ago to engage in the real estate business, died at his home in Los Angeles after a long period of failing health. He was a brother of the late ORVILLE D. DAILEY, '97x, and the father of Mrs. W. Lewis Brown, (DOROTHY DAILEY, '26), Gallipolis.

MRS. HELEN BAKER ADAMS, widow of the late Dr. Karl L. Adams, '09, for many years president of Northern Illinois State Teachers College in DeKalb, has spent much of her time in travel since her husband's death, Dec. 6, 1948. During the early months of 1949 she visited friends and points of interest in Arizona, California, Oregon, Montana, and Minnesota. In July, she sailed to Europe where for the next four and one-half months she toured Italy, Germany, Switzerland, Luxembourg, Belgium, the Scandinavian countries, France, Holland, England and Scotland. Her description of the many stops in each of these countries makes highly interesting reading. She enjoyed music festivals in Lucerne, Switerland, and Edinburgh, Scotland. Concerning her visits in England and Scotland she wrote: "They recalled much of the courses in English taken under Dr. Chubb and I wished for a better memory. Forty-three years is a long time." In Paris Mrs. Adams stayed in Reid Hall, Paris headquarters of the American Association of University Women. On the trip home, sailing from Cannes, France, Mrs. Adams

DARRILL, 38x, and DANA, 42x, the former a partner in the Lamborn Studio in Athens. Bernard, a World War II paratrooper, was killed in Holland.

At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Mayflower Insurance Co. in Columbus, February 18, JOHN G. CASI JR. was renamed a director, secretary-treasurer, and general manager of the company. Also re-elected were Senator John W. Bricker, president, and JOHN W. GALBRIATH, '20, vice president. The company operates in Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and West Virginia, writing all lines of fire insurance, and physical damage to private passenger automobiles.

1914

MRS. ALBERTA CARPENTER McLAUGHLIN, widow of the late GEORGE E. McLAUGHLIN, a member of the Ohio University faculty for almost four decades, died Feb. 26, 1950, at the family home in Athens. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Gordon Gray (HELEN McLAUGHLIN, '32), Athens, and a granddaughter, Betsy Gray. Mrs. McLaughlin was a sister of CLYDE CARPENTER, '12, who died in 1915.

1915

Mrs. W. C. Aber, an active figure in the Campfire Girls movement, died Jan. 13, 1950, at her home in Huntington, W. Va. She was the mother of IRINE ABER, a teacher in Central High School, and of NINA ABER, also of the Class of 1915, who died in 1929. Mrs. Aber, a native of Steubenville, organized the first Campfire unit in her home city and was one of the first guardians in the United States. In Huntington she was widely known for her church, Y.W.C.A., and women's club work.

1917

After a long and successful career as an athletic coach, DANA M. KING, with Mrs. King, the former MARIE LEIFHEIT, '13x, has retired to his farm near Glenford. Mr. King is a former head football coach and director of athletics at the University of Cincinnati. He had also coached in Hamilton High School and was at one time head coach of the Cincinnati Bengals, a professional football team. A son, DANA M., JR., graduated from Ohio University last June and is now pursuing graduate work in music. An outstanding trombonist, the son was one of two soloists featured in the Ohio University Symphonic Band concert on January 22. A daughter, Dorothy, attended Ohio University 1937-1939.

HAROLD E. "FRITZ" FREDERICK, ex, of Marysville, is secretary-treasurer of Scott-Mills, Inc., feed brokers and manufacturers. He is also a member of the State Board of Agriculture.

teamed with a lady from New Jersey to win the ship's bridge tournament. Teamed with a New York woman, she was ahead in the canasta tournament until the last round when the two players were displaced by a South American couple.

FRED LEE TOM (see picture), Athens, holder of three Ohio University diplomas—in Civil Engineering, Public School Music, and Voice and Harmony—was perhaps the most widely-known student of his college generation and for many years after. This was true because of his numerous activities and because for 16 years he handled parcels post, special delivery, and mail haulage for the Athens post office. He reports, incidentally, that during these years, he met 23 trains every 24 hours and that he rarely ever secured more than two consecutive hours of sleep. A member of the varsity quartet and the glee club in college days, he later supervised music in the Conneaut public schools and sang on Chautauqua circuits in 18 states and 77 Ohio Counties. He sang at Ohio University convocations over a period of 18 consecutive years, and still sings at some church every Sunday. He keeps an accurate record of his singing engagements and up to this month had sung at 751 funerals, an amazing total. "I came to college in 1909 with $75," he said recently, "and left with $155 and a wife." The wife is the former LUCILE HIGGINS, '15x. The Toms have two sons, EVERETT M. "TINK" STARR, prominent Huntington, W. Va. sporting goods dealer, has compiled and edited a 16-page booklet, "Fathers and Son," especially for the men of the First Presbyterian Church in Huntington. So great was the interest in it, however, that copies have been in demand from many sources outside the church. Listed among the contents of the booklet are such topic titles as "Pointers for Boys," "Pointers for Dads," "When a Boy Walks With His Europe where professional activities are being combined with sight seeing. The Columbus surgeon will deliver an address on his speciality in Paris, where he once did postgraduate work. The trip across was made aboard the S. S. Queen Mary. Return passage has been booked on the sister ship, Queen Elizabeth.

RUSSELL D. TUBAUGH, an English instructor in Roosevelt School, Cleveland Heights, writes that "I am still teaching poetry and Greek mythology to the young hopefuls here. Some are allergic to one, and some to both. All are inoculated, however. Even mild infections are appreciated." Mr. Tubaugh's mother, Mrs. Henry R. Tubaugh (see picture on page 15), Woodfield, who has seen six children, one daughter-in-law, and two sons-in-law graduate from Ohio University, has now witnessed the graduation of the first of six grandchildren, CHARLES R. BOSTON, '49. Mrs. Tubaugh, now 84 years of age, was the first Honorary Mother named by Ohio University, in 1939.

Prof. George Starr Lasher, former national president of Theta Chi fraternity and editor of its magazine, calls attention to an interesting fact; namely, that the current presidents of Athens' three service clubs are all Theta Chis from the local chapter, two of them classmates—DEAN GEORGE W. STARCHER (Rotary), DR. LORIN C. STAATS (Kiwanis) and WAYNE WARD, '31x (Lions).

DR. WILLIAM E. HUDSON, a prominent physician in New Philadelphia, is president of the Tuscarawas County Medical Society.

Ohio University is hoping that Kendrick Zinn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earle K. Zinn (LAVERNE MATTHEW), will come to its campus next fall. A senior in Canton's McKinley High School, Kendrick is an excellent scholar, a member of the all-state swimming team, on the track squad, first cellist in the symphony orchestra, and editor of The McKinley Times. Ken's dad is associated with a real estate enterprise in Akron headed by SAMUEL S. SHAFER, '14.

Mrs. Fred Clausen (RUTH HANEY), former Portsmouth High School teacher and a WAC officer with the U. S. Group Control Council in Germany, is now teaching in the American High School in Buenos Aires, Argentina. Her latest communication did not indicate what her husband is doing, but since he was attached to the U. S. Embassy in Paris at the time of their marriage in 1945 it is presumed that he is still a member of the U. S. diplomatic corps. Incidentally, the Haney-Clausen wedding was the first American marriage to be performed in occupied Germany.

JAMES E. HOUSEHOLDER, Athens, automobile dealer and former Ohio University staff member, has been appointed to the position on the Athens City Board of Education vacated by W. PARKER WALKER, '39. Mr. Walker, a local attorney, resigned the board position when he became city solicitor on January 1.

JOSEPH H. DANDO (see picture), ex, a recent graduate of the University of Arizona and now a graduate student at Ohio University, has been appointed assistant resident manager of the Men's Dormitory, soon to be officially designated Scott Quadrangle. With the completion of a new wing, this residence hall now houses 543 men students. Mr. Dando at-

CARLTON E. BURNETT, 2-yr., has been employed by the Kroger Company in Columbus for the past 18 years and has been personnel manager for the Manufacturing Division since 1942. In recent greetings, he wrote: "I am thrilled at the progress being made by Ohio University. My sincere congratulations."

ELIZABETH J. HERBERT, an English instructor in Cleveland's John Adams High School and a sister of former Governor Thomas J. Herbert, was one of the principal speakers at a Leader's Rally luncheon and conference held at Ohio University January 21. Miss Herbert spoke on "Vocational and World Leadership from Campus Leadership." The conference was attended by the presidents and advisors of all womens activities on the campus. Mrs. Fred Luchs, (EVELYN M. COULTER, '27), Athens, a member of the Ohio University Board of Trustees, was another conference speaker, discussing "Qualities of Leadership."

1923

DR. HARRY E. LEFEVER, and Mrs. LeFever, Columbus, the former a nationally-known brain surgeon, are now in tended Ohio University in the late '20's and was an All-Ohio guard in football. He was also prominent as a member of the varsity quartet and the men's glee club. His wife, the former Louise Palmer of Middletown, is a stenographer in the office of the Dean of Men.

PAUL L. YOUNG joined the faculty of the University of Illinois last September with a full professorship ranking in the School of Music. He had previously been a member of the music staff at Northwestern University in Evanston, and for several years was associate professor and head of the voice department of the University of North Carolina. In his present position he is in charge of choral activities. He and Mrs. Young have two children, Candace and Peter.

1932

William Jay Davis (see picture), Athens architect, whose sketch of the proposed new Episcopal Church to be located on University Terrace, opposite the Ohio University campus, is to be found on page 5, is a brother of MARGARET DAVIS, '17, Youngstown; Daniel Davis, '20, Shaker Heights; and Raymond C. Davis, '21, Rocky River. The sketch has attracted wide-spread and favorable attention.

1933

since his war days, has gone to Beckley, W. Va., as general manager of Randall Motors, Inc. In his new position he is currently busy in establishing Kaiser-Frazer dealerships in West Virginia and Virginia.

Mrs. ESTHER HARRIS ROCK is associated with the Athens Credit Bureau. The Athens agency has the distinction of being the smallest credit bureau in the state to be affiliated with the state and national associations of Credit Bureaus of America, Inc. Mrs. Rock is the daughter of CHARLES H. HARRIS, '06, a veteran newspaperman, and Mrs. Harris, Athens.

JOE J. GILGER has been sales manager for the Truscon Steel Company in Oklahoma City, Okla., for the past three years. He and Mrs. Gilger (DOROTHY RAWL, '34) were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Kersh (ALIENE ARNDT, '43) during a brief visit last summer. The Kershers are now living in Balboa, Panama Canal Zone, where Mr. Kersh is manager of a government commissary.

After receiving his degree at Ohio University in 1934, R. E. GORDON attended Cleveland College of Mortuary Science, graduating in 1936. He has been a funeral director in East Sparta for the past 13 years. His wife is the former Nancy Norris, '33.

ROBERT A. SNYDER, backfield coach of the Green Bay (Wisc.) Packers last season, has been named head football coach at the University of Toledo. The opinion is widely held that Toledo will be a member of the Mid-American Athletic Conference before too long. Coach Snyder has been a member of some "big time" coaching staffs, among them the University of Southern California, Notre Dame University, and, in pro circles, the Chicago Bears, the Los Angeles Rams, and the Packers. He won All-Buckeye and All-Ohio honors as a halfback at Ohio University.

After twenty-five years in the Perry County schools, the last twelve as principal of the New Lexington schools, ERNEST A. HOLCOMB has resigned and expects to take up residence in Nevada.

The Franklyn R. Payers are now living in a new home on the outskirts of Chagrin Falls. The site of the new abode provides three acres of elbow room. Mrs. Payer, the former SUE HOLMAN, won a home freezer in a Cleveland Press contest last summer and filled it with fruits and vegetables from her own garden. GRANT E. HOPE, '37, and Mrs. Hope (MARY BLY, '38) have built a home next door to the Payers.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Harshman (EVELETH ATKINSON), with their children, Bill, 4, and Frank, 2, moved from Cincinnati to Mentor in January. Mr. Harshman is now controller of The Swarthwart Co., in Cleveland.

GEORGE EDWARD MARSHALL

Further details have been received concerning GEORGE E. MARSHALL, '49, of Fairport Harbor, Ohio, who was killed in an auto accident Dec. 23, 1949, while going home for Christmas vacation. An initial report, lacking details, appeared in the January Alumnus.

Mr. Marshall had been principal of the high school at Pittman Center, Tennessee. The center, which included both grade and high school, church, hospital, sawmill and a community weaving establishment, is a project of the Methodist Church in the Smoky Mountain area. In addition to his work as principal, he also taught algebra, civics and remedial English. He was successfully introducing progressive education into the school, was keenly interested in its athletic and extracurricular program, and was superintendent of a church in the near-by community of Black Gum Gap.

While attending Ohio University Mr. Marshall, who ranked first in a class of 1,214, had been president of the Y.M.C.A., social service chairman of Wesley Foundation, a member of Campus Religious Council, Religious Action League, Public Affairs Club, Phi Beta Kappa and Kappa Delta Pi. In all his contacts he was a strong advocate of free and open debate for all political systems, complete equality for all cultural, racial and religious groups, and absolute frankness but non-violence in all disputes whether individual or international.

During the past summer he spent six weeks in an interracial work camp under Methodist auspices in New York City. The twenty-five members of this group were picked from throughout the nation and served in settlement house, youth camp, recreational and vacation Bible school work among various minority peoples.

ANITA J. BARNETT and JOHN F. McCORMICK are both associated with the staff of Radio Station WTNS, in Coshocton, the former as traffic director and continuity writer, and the latter as a continuity and news writer.

"Dutch" Trautwein, associate director of athletics and former football line coach at Ohio University, has been named captain of the Ohio State University grid team for 1950. A center on the Bobcat eleven in his freshman year at Ohio University, "Little Bill," who weighs a mere 235 pounds, had played a tackle position for the Scarlet and Gray. His defensive work in the Rose Bowl game on January 2 brought him nation-wide attention.

Deaths

WILLIAM FRANKLIN COPELAND

DR. W. FRANK COPELAND, Ph.B. '02, Ph.M. '03, professor emeritus of agriculture at Ohio University, died Feb. 15, 1950, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lloyd A. Aemisegger (HELEN MARTHA COPELAND, '45), in Alden, Mich., following an illness of more than two years' duration.

Born at Tappan, Aug. 16, 1872, he attended the Academy at New Hagers-town, Ohio, 1891-92, and entered the preparatory department at Ohio University in 1895. After a two-year absence during which he served as principal of the Tappan schools, he resumed his studies at the University, receiving his baccalaureate degree in 1902. He was awarded a master's degree one year later.

After graduating from Ohio University, Dr. Copeland attended Clark University, Worcester, Mass., where he secured another master's degree and a Ph.D. degree. He returned to Ohio University in 1907 as professor of botany. In 1910, he became professor of agriculture, the rank and title he bore at the time of his retirement in 1943.

In September, 1905, Dr. Copeland married Miss HELEN REINHERR, '05, of Woodfield, who died in Alden in May, 1948, one month after he and Mrs. Copeland moved from Athens.

Dr. Copeland was a member of the Ohio Academy of Science and had held numerous offices in the Ohio University Alumni Association, including the national presidency in 1938-39.

Interment was in Alden, Mich. Surviving are his daughter, Mrs. Aemisegger, and a foster son, Delmar Stout, Springfield.

The deceased educator was a brother of the late PROF. CHARLES M. COPELAND, '96, who was for many years head of the School of Commerce at Ohio University.

AMY MOORE WEIHR

AMY M. WEIHR, B.Ped. '59, Ph.M. '98, a life-long resident of Athens, died unexpectedly, Jan. 28, 1950, at her East State Street home after an illness of three weeks.

Miss Weihr was a critic teacher in the second grade of the University Training School, now known as the University Elementary School, from 1903 until her retirement in 1929. A sister, Clara Weihr, now deceased, was instructor in penmanship at Ohio University, 1886-87, and an art supervisor in the Athens public schools for many years thereafter.

In September, 1948, with her sister, MRS. ANNETTE WEIHR MCGINLEY, '91, Miss Weihr made a trans-Atlantic plane flight to spend two months in Heidelberg, Germany, as a guest of her nephew, Col. E. M. McGinley, of the U. S. Army of Occupation.

Mrs. McGinley, formerly of Hamilton, is now residing in the Weihr home in Athens. She is the widow of the late L. D. MCGINLEY, Sr., '94, and the mother of Col. McGinley and L. D. "Bud" MCGINLEY, Jr., '24, an engineer with the American Rolling Mill Co., in Hamilton.

FERNE LOWE WEST

MRS. FERNE LOWE WEST, '17, 2-yr., age 70, a public school teacher in Marion for 44 years, died there Nov. 23, 1949. She had been ill since the previous June, when she retired from teaching.

Mrs. West began her pedagogical activities in 1897 and had taught continuously, with the exception of a period from 1905 to 1913, since that time. She was an instructor in English and Latin at Vernon Heights Junior High School at the time of her retirement.

She was a graduate of Marion High School and besides Ohio U., had studied at Columbia, Ohio State, and Bowling Green State universities.

ALLENA BROOKINS CLINE

Mrs. C. R. Cline (ALLENA BROOKINS, '08, 2-yr.), Athens, age 66, died in Sheltering Arms Hospital, Jan. 5, 1950, after a brief illness.

Mrs. Cline was born in Jackson and was a graduate of the high school there.

Her husband, CECIL ROY CLINE, '00, and a son preceded her in death. Her survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Orville E. Russell, (JANE E. CLINE, '37), and two grandchildren, Columbus.

HARRY ROBERT KELLEY

HARRY R. KELLEY, '31x, age 42, Nelsonville, district manager of the Sonotone Hearing Aid Co., died Dec. 29, 1949, at White Cross Hospital, Columbus. Death was due to a heart ailment.

He is survived by his widow, the former Rebecca Sharp, and three children, Sharon, Maureen, and Denise. Mrs. Kelley is a descendant of Manasseh Cutler, one of Ohio University's founders.
